Open-Ended Responses

1. In what ways did your instructor make learning possible for you during the Spring 2024 semester?

Comments
Alex took time to answer questions and make sure everyone was understanding a topic before moving on.
Good at explaining
He explained concepts thoroughly while going over questions
TA Alexander really involved students during every recitation he's held throughout the semester for ECON-101. Throughout this small sub-course, TA Alexander has always been up for the task of explaining material that may or may not be difficult to process throughout the semester, which has provided students to think more concretely about economics as a whole. Overall, I really enjoyed TA Alexander's course, and he's a really knowledgeable and nice person as well!
Alexander Marsh explained difficult concepts to students during weekly recitation. The work always pertained to what was being taught in lecture that week, and was good practice.
He answered questions and tried his best to allow students to learn. Nevertheless, I think he may need to practice more before teaching. He often would confuse himself which would confuse us, as students.
Alexander challenged us during this course, he held meetings consistent with that in the syllabus and was available during pre-communicated times for extra help weekly
I liked that the class was smaller and more personalized, and I could ask questions as needed.
He was very clear to understand.

2. Which aspects of this course should be kept for future times this course is taught?

Comments
I think the individual assignments were really great and helpful to refer back to study for an exam.
The activities were helpful.
I think everything that was taught during this course should be kept for the future.
Walking the class through the problems and providing context we did not receive in class.
it was good
Everything
I like working through the practice problems. This was a good way to cement the topics learned in class into my mind.

everything
I believe all the aspects of this course should be kept for the future!
